FOREWORD

WHEN the life of a people is perfectly sound and wholesome, one of the chief sources of their inspiration, for the manly and honourable conduct of life, is what is best in the achievements and traditions of their fathers. The epic poet sets forth those achievements and traditions in an idealized light, and makes them beautiful and attractive for the imitation of the worthier type of youth, to whom a noble and honourable life is thus made to appeal as the right thing to strive for. But the bare, dry facts of history may also speak with a message, equally clear and inspiring, to him who is gifted with sufficient imagination to see them in their true significance. The Roll of Honour recorded on the War Memorial, which is now so prominent a feature of almost every village and parish throughout the King's dominions, consists usually of nothing more than a bare list of names. To the stranger passing by such a list conveys little or no meaning, but to those who see the names of their loved ones there enshrined, it speaks with pathetic though silent eloquence, for to some one or other every name may be the name not only of a loved and lost one, but possibly of the hero of some deed or story that will grow more and more interesting and inspiring as the years pass by, and the halo of romance gradually gathers around it.

"The brave

Die never. Being deathless they but change

Their country's arms, for more, their country's heart."

In this book we have before us a Roll of Honour and of Service of the Clan MacRae. The MacRaes, whose homeland was in the parishes of Kintail and Glenshiel, under the chiefship of the great Earls of Seaforth, have always been regarded as one of the minor clans. Nevertheless, their name in the various forms in which it appears now in all parts of the British Empire and the United States of America has provided 3,624 men and women who answered the call of duty and honour, of whom 423 men laid down their lives for their King and country. This Roll has been compiled by Mrs. MacRae-Gilstrap of Eilean Donan, and may well be described as a work of love. It could be done in such completeness only by the most careful examination from day to day of all the long lists appearing in the London Gazette and the daily press, supplemented, no doubt, in many cases by private inquiries, and nothing but a real and whole-hearted devotion to the fame and honour of the clan of her adoption could enable her to maintain the patient watchfulness and perseverance necessary to continue such an undertaking for the four long years of anxious and agonizing tension through which our country was then passing, and of which she herself, like many another brave and noble woman, had to endure her own share. For this work, so carefully and so completely accomplished, all members and connections of the clan owe Mrs. MacRae-Gilstrap a deep and lasting debt of gratitude. The memory of those who achieved the victory for us in the greatest war in which we have ever been engaged, will surely not be readily allowed to perish, and in days that are now far off in the dim and distant future, worthy men and women will point with justifiable and uplifting pride to the name of some ancestor recorded on this Roll, which will still remain as a lasting memorial to the cherished memory of the gracious lady by whom it has been compiled with such care and reverence.

SHEPHALL RECTORY, HERTS,
19th August, 1922.

Alexander Macrae.

PREFACE

THIS volume is intended to be a permanent record of the part played by the Clan MacRae in the Great War, and also to be, to a certain extent, a history of the Clan. It has been compiled for the sake of the Clansmen and Clanswomen of the present day, in the hope that it will be handed on to those who come after them, so that they in turn may not be ignorant of their "goodly heritage."

The existence of the book is entirely due to the zeal and enthusiasm of the compiler—Mrs. MacRae-Gilstrap of Eilean Donan, who has expended an incredible amount of time upon the Rolls of Honour and of Service. To her the Clan MacRae owes a deep debt of gratitude for having thus placed on record the noble services which were rendered to the Empire by its members, and which might otherwise have passed into oblivion.

There are some regrettable points. It is unfortunate that the volume could not be published sooner, but the amount of detail which had to be gone into made this impossible. With regard to the portraits, it is disappointing that in some cases better results have not been obtained; the very best, however, was made of the photographs which were received. No effort has been spared to obtain complete and accurate information; one can only regret that in the case of some individuals, and also in the case of certain Government Offices, little or no assistance was given, this being true in particular with regard to the War Office. On the other hand, it is a pleasure to acknowledge the courteous assistance received from the Admiralty, from Record Offices at home and from those of Overseas Contingents, from Chief Constables, and from many others.

When the printing of the volume was far advanced, further information was obtained which necessitated the addition of two Appendices. Appendix I contains the names of 109 MacRaes belonging to different Scottish Regiments. Appendix II is of very special interest and importance, and forms what may be called the American Section of the Roll. It contains the Rolls of Honour and of Service of the MacRaes who served in the United States Navy and Army, transcribed from the Official Records of the United States through the courtesy of the Admiralty and of the Adjutant-General, and is thus a complete record of their names and services, and also gives many valuable details which deserve to find a permanent place in any account of the Clan.

The Rolls give the names of 3,624 men and women who either served at sea, on land, or in the air, or did work of National importance. The total is made up as follows:—

BRITISH EMPIRE.
Roll of Honour		423
Roll of Service (including Appendix I)		2,364
		2,787
UNITED STATES (Appendix II).
Roll of Honour		18
Roll of Service		819
		<hr/>
		837
		<hr/>
		3,624

The very great assistance rendered by Miss M. D. Allardyce in the preparation of the Rolls for the press has to be acknowledged, and also that of Mr. Theodore Watt, M.A., in the printing of the book. One is glad, too, to have this opportunity of thanking the Reverend Alexander Macrae (the Clan MacRae Historian) for the kindly assistance he has afforded, and for writing the Foreword.

In spite of the shortcomings and omissions of the Rolls, during its compilation links have been forged and friendships formed which, it is hoped, will foster the true Clan spirit. Incomplete though the Record may be, none the less it tells the story of many a heroic deed, typical not only of what actually was done, but of what, had opportunity occurred, would have been done by every member of the Clan MacRae.

THE CLAN MACRAE

SHORT ACCOUNT OF THE CLAN

There can be no gainsaying that the origin of the Scottish Clans is wrapped and nearly lost in myth, legend and tradition, proving the truth of the old meaning of the word History, which is fact founded on fable. In those old, grim days the struggle for existence was so fierce that the man who fought and won became such a hero that his deeds of prowess were told and retold and handed down to those who came after him, till all who could count kin with him shared the honour of his name and fame, and clung to it. Roughly this seems the probable foundation of the clan, though perhaps the real depth and vitality of the true clan feeling is only known to those who have inherited it through long descent.

As time passed records, half true, half mythical, began to be kept, and one fact always emerged—that the Highlanders were pre-eminently fighters. In the case of the Clan MacRae this is borne out by the two oft-quoted sayings:—"Little wat ye wha's comin'. A' the wild MacRas are comin'"; "Of a' the Heilan' Clans MacNab is most ferocious, except the MacIntyres, the MacRas, and the MacKintoshes." But the clans had also their outstanding men, men of affairs and of letters, and we come upon the reputed founder of the Clan MacRae in Kintail, Finlay MacGillechriosd, notable for valour in battle and for prudence in counsel, whose mantle in later days fell upon the shoulders of his descendant, the Reverend Farquhar MacRa; and there is also Duncan MacRa, a distinguished Gaelic poet, whose poems are full of the characteristic Celtic blend of religious feeling, joy and melancholy. Some of them are to be found in the Fernaig Manuscript.

It is believed that the MacRas had settled in Kintail before 1200, though no documentary evidence of this exists. The name MacRa (in Gaelic MacRath) means the Son of Grace or Luck, and traditionally the MacRas came from Ireland, the story being that a Maurice MacRath and two others had fled on account of some quarrel. They reached the Lovat country at an opportune moment when the life of Bissett, Lord of Lovat, was in danger at the hand of an assassin whom MacRath slew, and in return he gained the friendship of Lovat, and was invited to settle on the lands of Clunes. Ere long, however, the tide turned. On a hunting expedition a quarrel sprang up between Lovat's son and John, son of MacRath or MacRa of Clunes. Lovat's son was slain by MacRath's son, and the four sons of MacRath had to flee the country, leaving only the old man himself in Lovat, the last MacRath of Clunes. Of the four sons, two, John and Finlay, settled in Kintail. John was such a restless man that he was known as Ian Carrach, fidgety John; he married a daughter of Macaulay, Auchnagart, and their first child was the first MacRa born in Kintail. Finlay (4th son of MacRa of Clunes) wandered about for a time, but eventually he also settled in Kintail near his brother John. Finlay was the ancestor of Fionnla Dubh MacGillechriosd, and with him commences the recorded genealogy of the MacRas of Kintail. The Bissett, Lord of Lovat, above referred to is believed to have lived about 1250, so that the MacRas must have settled in Kintail long before 1400, at which time we know with certainty that Mackenzie of Kintail was welcoming the help of the MacRas in establishing his position there, in fact so cognisant was he of his dependence upon them that the MacRas earned the sobriquet of "Mackenzie's Leine-chreis," or Privy Councillors or confidants. Bound to the Lord of Kintail by this longstanding close connection, the MacRas, who never had a chief of their own, have ever looked to Seaforth as their chief. At the same time the MacRas were more than a mere bodyguard to, or henchmen of, Seaforth. They were an independent clan, with their own badge, the fir club moss; their own slogan, "Sgurr-Fhuaran" (the name of the highest hill in Kintail); their own tartans; and their own clan music.

In this brief account of the clan, place can be found for only some outstanding names, such as have a special genealogical or historical interest.

The first MacRa whose name is distinctly recorded is Finlay Dubh MacGillechriosd (Black Finlay, Son of Christopher), the founder of the Clan MacRa in Kintail, believed to be descended from Finlay MacRath, fourth son of the old MacRath of Clunes. John and Finlay came to Kintail, but no recognized record of John's direct descendants exists, though several well-known MacRae families claim descent from him. Finlay Dubh MacGillechriosd lived about 1410, and was held in high esteem by the Chief of Kintail for his wise counsels during the minority of the 6th Chief, Alistair Ionraic, who, whilst still a boy, succeeded his father. We come next to Black Finlay's grandsons, Finlay and Duncan. Duncan, the younger, was a man of war, and so fierce in combat that he was known as Big Duncan of the Battle Axe (Donnacha Mor na Tuagh). The story is told of him that when as a boy he was refused the use of weapons on account of his youth, he somehow got an old battle-axe, rushed into the midst of a fierce struggle which was taking place between the Mackenzies and the MacDonalds, and slew several men, including the redoubtable Maclaine of Lochbuie, the foremost fighter in the Isles. At night he returned to the stronghold where the clan was gathered, and threw four heads of MacDonalds on the table, saying, "See, I have earned my supper." He was given his place!

Finlay, Black Finlay's elder grandson, was chief counsellor, as his father and grand-father before him had been, to the Chief of Kintail. He was thus counsellor, contemporary and supporter of the 9th Chief who fought at Flodden (1513) and Pinkie (1547), and so helpful was Finlay to his Chief in fighting for him in a fierce feud with a rival claimant, MacKenzie of Gairloch, to the Chiefship, that as a reward for his services his son Christopher was appointed (circa 1511) Constable of Ellandonan Castle, the stronghold of the Mackenzies in Kintail, and for centuries the rallying ground of the Clan MacRa.

From the long list of dead and gone MacRas we may choose out that of one lady of the olden days, a certain Mistress Margaret MacKreth or MacRa. We come upon her first as lady-in-waiting to the Countess of Sutherland, later she was married to John Gordon of Drummoy, of the Huntly family, and had five sons and two daughters. She was the ancestress of the Gordons, Baronets of Embo. "She wes a verie virtuous gentlewoman, much given to hospitalitie, both towards rich and poore, and the best interteyner of strangers and others, that hath been these many yeirs in that province, of her estate and qualitie. Shae died at Doill, the yeir of God 1598, and was buried at Dornogh, much regrated by all that knew her."

Up to 1600 the Highlands were seething with clan feuds and clan quarrels in which the Wild MacRas took a generous share. We hear of Ellandonan being held by only three of a garrison who repulsed an attack by the MacDonalds, when they made a sudden raid upon it with a number of birlins or galleys. Duncan MacRa, the then acting Constable, was one of the three. He showed great skill and courage; with his last arrow he slew Donald Gorm of Sleat, and the loophole in the corner of the hexagonal Well Tower from which he fired his arrow is still to be seen. When their leader was gone, the MacDonalds lost heart and abandoned the siege.

Of Farquhar (3rd son of Christopher, Constable circa 1511) we know little, but the Torlysich family is descended from him. They were called the Black MacRas to distinguish them from the Fair MacRas, the descendants of his elder brother Duncan. This Duncan's grandson, another Duncan, called as was his father (Donnacha MacGillechriosd) is the hero of the following characteristic story. When twenty galleys of the MacDonalds raided Lochcarron with fire and sword, Dungan, with one galley, manned by eighteen men, and a few small boats, tricked the MacDonalds by a clever ruse. He slew Angus Og, younger of Glengarry, and his sixty followers at the Cailleach Rock, without losing any of his own men, and returned to Ellandonan with the dead body of the MacDonald leader on his own captured galley.

Many other such tales could be told, but we must pass on to days of less stress and strain. During the first half of the 17th century, from 1618 to 1651, the Rev. Farquhar MacRa, who was born at Ellandonan Castle in 1580, was Constable of Ellandonan and Vicar of Kintail. He was the great-grandson of Christopher, Constable (circa 1511) of Ellandonan, a man of piety, ability and learning, and strongly imbued with loyalty to his clan and to his chief. He carried on faithfully the old traditions, was the trusted friend and counsellor of Seaforth, and lived at Ellandonan, refusing offers of preferment which would have called him away from his beloved Kintail. He was not only a firm supporter of, but a sufferer for, the Royal cause in the Civil Wars. His clansmen fought along with Montrose under Seaforth with such loyalty that Ellandonan was garrisoned by Parliamentary troops to overawe the district, and General Monk himself came north and carried off 360 of the Rev. Farquhar MacRa's cattle. It is a touching testimony to the old man's own loyalty that, after the Stuart restoration in 1660, when urged to claim compensation, he maintained that to the real royalist the return of the rightful king was sufficient compensation. Seaforth's appreciation of Farquhar MacRa's loyal services is proved by his gift to him of the wadset rights of Dornie, Inig, and other places in Kintail, and also of a wadset of Inverinate, Dorusduain and Letterinimmer for his son Alexander.

The Rev. Farquhar MacRa married, 1st December 1611, Christina, eldest daughter of MacCulloch of Park, Strathpeffer. He had a large family, but the two most important to the clan history are the two elder sons, John and Alexander, as from them the two MacRa families of Conchra and Inverinate trace their descent. Unfortunately no documentary evidence exists to show whether John or Alexander was the elder. John MacRa was born at Ardlair, 13th March 1614, he was a prominent clergyman at Dingwall, and notwithstanding Presbyterian pressure a staunch Episcopalian, as all the MacRas had been. On the death of his father, the Rev. Farquhar MacRa, he succeeded to all his father's lands, which would point very definitely to his having been the eldest son. This son is now (1922) represented by Stuart MacRae of Conchra, head of the Conchra family, and 21st representative of Finlay Dubh MacGillechriosd. His younger brother, Colonel John MacRae-Gilstrap, is Constable of Eilean Donan Castle. Alexander, the other son of the Rev. Farquhar, to whom reference has been made, who had a wadset of Inverinate, is now (1922) represented by Sir Colin G. Macrae, W.S., Edinburgh. His forebear, the Rev. John MacRae, son of the said Alexander, wrote a clan history in which he is said to have stated that Alexander was the eldest son. Unfortunately the original history has been lost, and the oldest existing transcript is one made by Farquhar MacRa (d. 1789), the last representative of the family who held Inverinate in Kintail.

The Constableness of the Rev. Farquhar MacRa saw the clan, instead of losing itself in clan feuds, pass on to the wider arena of national affairs. The MacRas had already given their allegiance to the Stuart cause, so it was only to be expected that in the '15 and the '45 they would "rise and follow Charlie." Seaforth, their chief, was a strong supporter of King James (VIII), and on the fateful day of Sheriffmuir (the principal battle in the '15 rising) he had two regiments and a numerous following of the Clan MacRa. Seaforth's men fought in the left wing under the Earl of Mar, and when it gave way before Argyle, the MacRas stood firm and fought to the death. The gallant John of Conchra fell on the field, and it is said that 58 women in Kintail were made widows. This John was one of the "Four Johns of Scotland" famous for their courage and daring—John MacRa of Conchra, John MacKenzie of Hilton, John Murchison of Auchtertyre and John MacKenzie of the Applecross family, all fought under Seaforth, and all fell at Sheriffmuir.

But alas! the clan's cup of sacrifice for their "rightfu' King" was not yet full. The fleet which was to have helped James in 1719 was wrecked, and only two vessels reached Kintail. The MacRas under Seaforth, joined by Rob Roy MacGregor and his followers, encamped opposite Ellandonan, but the Government took prompt measures, three ships of war and Hanoverian troops were dispatched to raze the castle and crush the rising. Ellandonan was bombarded, the garrison of Spaniards surrendered, and on 10th May, 1719, the old castle, the rallying place of the clan, was blown up by gunpowder and reduced to ruins. The third Government ship sailed up Loch Duich and destroyed the old church of Kintail situated in the midst of the old clan burial ground. A month later the Hanoverian troops reached Kintail, a fierce battle was fought at Glenshiel, the Jacobites were utterly defeated, Seaforth escaped abroad, and his estates were forfeited to the Crown. The men of Kintail, however, with characteristic loyalty, paid no heed to this, and still paid their rents to Seaforth's representative.

The MacRas had already suffered so severely, and given their lives so freely for their King, that there were not many left to share in the '45. Seaforth was pardoned in 1725 and refrained from taking part in the '45, but when the call came, the MacRas were not found wanting, and tradition has it that all of those who went both "fought and died for Charlie."

Peaceful years followed the Jacobite risings, law and order were established, no longer could every man do "that which was right in his own eyes," the days were gone "when a man could take whatever he wished, provided he could fight." The warlike spirit of the clans was harnessed by statesmen to form the fighting spirit of the Highland

JAMES ALEXANDER FRANCIS HUMBERSTON STEWART-MACKENZIE

Colonel, late 9th Lancers, and lineal representative in the female line of the Earls of Seaforth, Chiefs of the Clan MacRae: created Baron Seaforth of Brahan in 1921; died 3rd March, 1923. The immemorial right of the MacRaes to the "first lift" of Seaforth's coffin out of Brahan Castle was exercised by representatives of the Clan on 8th March, 1923.

Regiments which were being recruited. Kenneth, Earl of Seaforth, raised the Seaforth Highlanders in 1778, and the MacRaes joined in large numbers, but the old spirit lived and was not easily curbed, as is illustrated by the following episode known as "the affair of the MacRaes." In September 1778 the Seaforth Regiment was sent to Edinburgh: it was officered by Englishmen who could neither speak nor understand Gaelic, the only language the rank and file knew, and the rumour got about that the men had been sold to the East India Company; also they had not received their promised bounty money or their pay. They felt themselves betrayed and so took matters into their own hands. Marching to Arthur's Seat, they entrenched themselves there, getting food and ammunition from the good folk of Edinburgh who fully sympathized with them. In the end they gained the day, a general pardon was granted, all arrears were made up, and they were not sent to India till 1781, with the Earl of Seaforth as their Colonel. In 1807 Seaforth sold his lands in Kintail, and the clan's long term of fealty and devotion to their chief ended in 1815 with the death of the last Lord Seaforth, without male issue.

In 1907 Sir Colin G. Macrae, W.S., Edinburgh, Head of the Inverinate family, made a claim to the Lyon King of Arms to be officially recognized as Chief of the Clan MacRae, and to be given certain Arms and Supporters as such. This claim was opposed by Major John MacRae-Gilstrap of Ballimore, Argyll, on behalf of his brother, Stuart MacRae, Head of the Conchra family. After a lengthy and exhaustive trial the Petition was refused by the Lyon King of Arms in 1909, and it was clearly shown that there had never been a chief of the MacRaes other than Seaforth.

With changed days and changed ways great changes came to Kintail and the MacRaes. Small holdings gave place to large farms, the flood of emigration to Canada, America and elsewhere set in, men left their lonely glens to seek fame and fortune in the south, but when the Great War came their old fighting instincts did not fail them. From far and near the MacRaes flocked to the colours. When one looks at this Record, which is an attempted account of the doings of the MacRaes in the Great War, and glances back at what they did in old days, one realizes the difference. First there was the desperate struggle for existence, then the fierce inter-clan feuds, later the historic devotion to a lost cause, which has its own pathos and thrill and is touched by the magic of romance; but now greater issues are at stake: they fight for King and Country and Empire and the Motherland and for the rights of nations.

And the clan has grown. Instead of MacRaes gathering, as formerly in duty bound, to serve under their chief, Seaforth, we find them coming from all over the world, of their own free will, to take their share in the struggle and, if need be, to lay down their lives. One throws up everything and sails from South America to enlist; another travels hundreds of miles in Canada, often on foot, to join the colours.

In the aftermath of the '45 the ruin seemed complete, the great days of the clans were over; but in 1914 the few scores who fought for Charlie are replaced by thousands! Comment on their deeds is needless; a bare record such as this speaks more plainly than volumes of praise. In the words of Abraham Lincoln: "The world will little note nor long remember what we say here. It can never forget what they did"—

"The men of the tattered Battalion which fights till it dies, Dazed with the dust of the battle, the din and the cries."

BLACK CHANTER OF KINTAIL

KINTAIL PIPES

FEADAN DUBH CHINTAILLE

The Feadan Dubh, or Black Chanter of Kintail, which, for several generations, was one of the heirlooms of the Mackenzies of Kintail, is now in the possession of Lieutenant Colin William MacRae of the Black Watch.

The chanter is considered to be much older than the drones, and the note holes are very much worn. At some time it must have been badly broken, and is now held together by no less than seven silver rings. The two top rings have engraved on them the words, "A smeorach aigharach" (the merry thrush). The other rings have "Scur Orain," the slogan of the MacRaes; "Caisteal Donain," "Cinntaille," "Loch-Duich," and on the bottom ring "Tulloch Aird (sic)," the slogan of the Mackenzies. On the chanter stock is fixed a stag's head and horns in silver, the Mackenzie crest, surmounted by a baron's coronet, and underneath it the inscription, "Lord Seaforth, Baron Mackenzie, High Chief of Kintail, 1797," and below this inscription the words, "Tulloch Aird (sic)."

The stock of the blowpipe has the following inscription:—"This silver-mounted black ebony set of bagpipes, with the Feadan Dubh Chintaille, was the property of Lord Seaforth, Baron Mackenzie, High Chief of Kintail, 1797," and on the blowpipe itself is the figure of a Highlander, in silver, in full costume, with drawn claymore, surmounted by the motto, "O Thir nam Beann" (from the land of the mountains).

The stock of the big drone has the following inscription:—"From Lord Seaforth, Baron Mackenzie, High Chief of Kintail, to Lieutenant-Colonel Sir John MacRa, K.C.H., of Ardintoul, Kintail, late 79th Cameron Highlanders." The big drone has three shields, and the top shield has the following inscription:—"All Highland bagpipes, till after the Battle of Waterloo, had but two of three short treble drones." The second shield has "Lieutenant-Colonel Sir John MacRa, K.C.H., late 79th Cameron Highlanders, was the first to introduce (and it was on this set of pipes) the use of a big or bass drone"; and the third shield has, "The big or bass drone was pronounced a great improvement in the harmony and volume of sound."

The stock of the second drone has the following:—"From Lieut.-Colonel Sir John MacRa, K.C.H., to his nephew, Captain Archibald MacRa Chisholm, late 42nd Royal Highlanders, the Black Watch." The shield on the second drone has, "The introduction of the big or bass drone was approved, and the example was soon followed in the making of military bagpipes."

The stock of the third drone has the following inscription:—"From Captain A. M. Chisholm, late 42nd Royal Highlanders, Black Watch, Freicadan Dubh to (present possessor). The shield on the third drone has "Lieut.-Colonel Sir John MacRa was an excellent performer on the bagpipes. He made pipes and chanters; and when military secretary to his relative, the Marquis of Hastings, Viceroy of India, he taught the natives of India to play on the Highland bagpipes."

Captain Chisholm some time before his death, on the 19th October, 1897, presented the Kintail bagpipes to his cousin, Major Colin William MacRae.

THE BATTLE OF SHERIFFMUIR
1715

LAMENT FOR THE FOUR JOHNS OF SCOTLAND

BY KENNETH MACRAE, ARDELVE

THIS Lament was composed by KENNETH MACRAE, Ardelve, for "The Four Johns of Scotland." These were—John MacRae of Conchra; John Murchison of Auchtertyre; John MacKenzie of Hilton; and John MacKenzie of the Applecross family. They were officers under Seaforth at Sheriffmuir, and were killed there—hence the Lament. The poet was about 70 years of age at the date of the battle; nevertheless his zeal for the Jacobite cause was such that nothing would prevent him from being present at Sheriffmuir. The "William" to whom reference is made in the second verse is the 5th Earl of Seaforth, who died 1740, generally called "Uilleam Dubh." This translation is more or less free.

Sad is the tale I must now relate,
It caused abhorrence to all who heard it,
The men who were foremost in the strife—
Alas, alas! what to them befell?

William the Famous is this day in distress,
His heart is broken, and 'tis no wonder;
Brave was his straplings since first he raised them,
Under his many beautiful banners.

'Twas from Kintail that they marched away,
Their like was not under Fingal's banner;
The men so stalwart, so strong and handsome—
Alas, alas! what to them arose?

The day we ascended to the height,
There was wrath and fierceness 'mong the men of my choice;

A two-edged sword in each hero's belt,
And a Spanish gun was in his grasp.

When they were marched out of Perth,
They had the thought—but, alas! 'twas false—
That Alba, Erin, and England was free to them,
And the whole of them under their control.

Alas that powder and deadly shot
Should be blinding you during the fight;
When the heroes stood shoulder to shoulder,
There was little fear of their cavalry.

When I gazed on yonder grey troops,
The men of my love were sorely pressed,
Like a single dyke the wind o'erthrew them,
And the nasty sluggards then ran away.

The archers were in the fray,
With canvas breeches and cassock grey
Great was the tumult arranging them:
'Twas the great Evil One that brought us out.

The youthful warrior fell in the strife—
John of Conchra—great was the loss;
The gallant hero, with strength of arm,
Sending swarm of his foes to grass.

Such was John of Conchra—a fearless youth,
A deadly soldier was he in war,
A-splitting heads while his weapon lasted,
And men were speechless after his blows.

Auchtertyre was there, a king o'er men,
That was the hero, noble and hardy;
A lion fierce, he brave and noble,
He led the army as they advanced.

That was the warrior, hardy and true,
From royal people, and excellent in appearance,
A grand family, their praise was widespread,
'Twas no crouching coward came from them.

John Og's son was there, sad tale to tell,
That was the gallant both neat and brave;
With trusty sword and with strength of arm,
Many bloody wigs he brought to grass.

A kindly hawk was there from Hilton,
A hero, noble, strong and brave;
To cut the joints of the swift horses,
Wasted was his dalliance, fierce was his onset.

No sneak was he when in battle array,
Nor yet a cooper behind a shield;
But a hero, hearty and cheerful,
That proved his prowess before he fell.

THE CLAN MACRAE

But oh, fellows! how sad the tale,
William of Seaforth to engage in the fight;
His blood was flowing with the leaden shot,
'Twas an awful sight when he attacked the rabble.

The quicker they made for evil,
The leaden shot did these wound full sore;
There would be broken heads with the tight breeches,
By the blue blades so formidable in the strife.

Was not the powder a cowardly loon
When he took the crown from the rightful side,
With wily tricks, taking us unawares,
This caused the evil that came on us.

Had Clan Donald come and taken part with us,
The noble fellows so useful in strife—
The Rosses and the Munroes together
Would be meeting us a-seeking hospitality.

CAIRN ON SHERIFFMUIR

THE CLAN MEMORIAL CAIRN ON THE BATTLEFIELD OF SHERIFFMUIR

This Cairn was erected by the Members of the Clan MacRae Society to commemorate their gallant Clansmen who fought and fell at Sheriffmuir.

This Battle, which took place on Sunday, 13th November, 1715, was perhaps the most decisive incident of the '15 Rising. It was fought between the Highlanders and the Government forces: the former, under the Earl of Mar, fought for the Jacobite Cause as represented by the Chevalier de St. George, James VIII; the latter, under the Duke of Argyll, fought for the House of Hanover as represented by George I. The MacRaes were posted on the left flank of the Highland Army, very near the spot where the Cairn now stands, for according to tradition the Gathering Stone marked the site of the battle.

It was a disastrous day for the Jacobites. Owing to the difficulty of the ground and their position, the Highlanders were caught unprepared and were attacked on their unprotected flank. Though broken, they made several desperate attempts to rally, but at length were compelled to give way. The gallant MacRaes suffered heavily, and mostly fell where they stood. Tradition has it that as the result of that day's bloody conflict 58 women were widowed in the Parish of Kintail alone.

The Memorial Cairn was unveiled and dedicated on 23rd September, 1922, and stands as a silent yet eloquent testimony to the deeds of the brave men who lie 'neath the soil of that historic field.

The inscription on the Cairn runs:—

EILEAN DONAN CASTLE

I

The Castle walls but without the halls,
Where the chiefs of McKenzie were born,
Stand lonely there, in ruins bare,
In the light of the early morn.

II

No warder calls on these Castle walls,
No sound of joy or grief,
No Clansmen shout in wassail rout,
No child, no wife, no chief!

III

"Where are the men of this green glen?"
I ask of the idle wind,
Ah! gone like the snow of a year ago,
And left but the wreck behind.

IV

So I stood in the calm of a summer dawn
On that rock of the Western Sea,
While ghosts of the past came fleeting past,
And crowded over me.

EILEAN DONAN CASTLE

EILEAN DONAN CASTLE

"Eilean Donan" is a word to conjure with for every MacRae: it recalls the old feudal Castle, the rallying place of the clan, which was for long the home of their chief, MacKenzie of Seaforth, whilst for generation after generation a MacRae was appointed Constable of Eilean Donan.

The Castle stands on an island in Loch Duich, and got its name Eilean Donan (Donan's Isle) from St. Donan, the friend of St. Columba, one of the missionaries and martyrs sent out in the 6th century from the home of the Celtic Church in Iona. Eilean Donan is said to have been built by Alexander II about 1200, as a stronghold against the Danes. If the old Keep could tell its own story, it would be one filled with thrilling deeds of bravery and bloodshed. In illustration of this we may quote from the Clan History how "in 1331, Randolph, Earl of Moray, who was then Warden of Scotland, despatched a crown officer to Ellandonan to prepare the Castle for his reception and to arrest the misdoers. Fifty of these misdoers were put to death, and their heads were exposed on the top of the Castle walls," as the worthy Wyntoun says:—

" And the heidis of thaim all
Were set up hie upon a wall
Of a tour of Elandonan."

Again in 1504 it was captured by Alexander, Earl of Huntly, who had undertaken to reduce Eilean Donan and other castles "for the daunting of the Isles," James IV providing "a ship with artillery for the purpose." Shortly afterwards James erected the Castle, fortalice and adjoining lands into the Barony of Ellandonan. Thirty years later Donald Gorm MacDonald of Sleat attacked the Castle, which was held by only a few men; if their numbers were few, their courage was great, for with his last arrow Duncan McRa, son of Christopher McRa, Constable of Eilean Donan, shot Donald Gorm and saved the Castle—and so the story of brave and bloody deeds runs on.

An anonymous writer who lived between 1583 and 1601 gives a rather charming description of the old Keep:—"The Castel of Glen Donen is composed of a strong and fair Dungeon upon a rock, with another tower compased with a fair Barnkin wall, with orchards and trees, all within ane yland of the lenth of twa pair of butts, almost round. It is sayd that of old that castel consisted of seaven tours." There does not now seem as if there had been much room for orchards and trees. It is difficult from the ruins to reconstruct, even in imagination, the appearance of the Castle in the days of its glory. The walls were 11 feet in thickness, the remains of a wall chamber can be traced, and on the east side of the Castle there is a hexagonal tower, the well tower, with a spring which was the water-supply of the Castle. We presume that part of the Castle itself had a flat leaden roof, and on it the MacRas are said to have danced the night before they marched from Kintail to fight under Seaforth in the ill-fated battle of Sheriffmuir in 1715, from which so few returned.

The end of the old Castle was tragic. After the failure of the '15 Rising it was garrisoned by a body of Spaniards, the Jacobites making it their headquarters and storing their ammunition there. On 10th May, 1719, three English men-of-war sailed up Loch Alsh, they opened fire on the old walls, the garrison surrendered, and the Castle was blown up and completely shattered. But we do not end on this sad note, for there is again a Constable of Eilean Donan. In 1913 Lt.-Colonel John MacRae-Gilstrap bought the old historic castle, which he is restoring, and, as the Rev. Farquhar MacRa, his grandfather five generations back was, so is he now, Constable of Eilean Donan.

GATE OF ELLANDONAN CASTLE
FOUND IN WELL (ABOUT) 1833,

THE EILEAN DONAN "CUACH"

This Cuach was made from a cannon ball which was fired when H.M. Ships "Worcester" and "Enterprise" stormed and destroyed Eilean Donan Castle, 10th May, 1719. It is lined with glass and mounted in silver, and the stand is of oak taken out of one of the old houses in the High Street of Edinburgh. It was presented by the Clan MacRae Society to Capt. Duncan MacRae, younger of Eilean Donan, on his marriage to The Lady Phyllis Hervey, 9th Nov., 1921.

THE BRAVE MACRA

DUNCAN MCRA,

ACTING CONSTABLE OF ELLANDONAN CASTLE, 1537.

Where the western sea divides
On a small and rocky Isle
Flows Loch Long's treacherous tides,
And Loch Duich's depths beguile.

Ellandonan's hoary keep,
Roofless ruins guard the scene.
O'er its mouldering grandeur creep
Lichens grey and ivy green.

Here the Irish Colin came,
Proud Fitzgerald, Desmond's son*—
Here with sword, and blood and flame,
The savage Norse he fell upon.

We do not raise our simple song
To tell of Chiefs in battle fierce—
Historic tomes their praise prolong,
And lofty lays their fame rehearse.

We fain would tell how this old wall
Held once for garrison and guard—
The story's like a bugle call—
One heart as true as its own sword.

Down the dim vista of the past
It ringing comes like clashing steel,
And riding on the north wind's blast,
Its mystic echoes round us wheel.

Lord of the Isles, McDonald, he,
Led by ambition's dazzling lure,
Fair Ellandonan by the sea
Seeks to encompass from the shore.

* Haco, King of Norway, was here defeated by Colin Fitzgerald, son of the Earl of Desmond and Kildare, A.D. 1263, "Colino Hibernico" as he is called in the deed of possession granted by Alexander, A.D. 1266.

THE CLAN MACRAE

Kintail's High Chieftain* forth had gone
 With belted plaid and burnished spear
 Against the Saxon, leaving none
 To guard his island castle here.

And Donald Gorm, McDonald's Chief,
 With twenty birlins† o'er the sea,
 Sought this rich prize, for no relief
 Could come against his enmity.

And twenty men each birlin bore,
 All stretched and eager for the fray,
 And as they struck the sounding shore,
 Their claymores flash to meet the fray.

Who holds 'gainst all this wild array
 Old Ellandonan's castle grim?
 The Constable alone that day
 And one old man to stand with him,

But brave McRa the signal hears,
 Has gained the castle's inner wall,
 The clansman's manly form appears
 With them to stand, or with them fall.

McDonald's men with wild emprise
 Make maddening rush to win their way,
 And forth the deadly arrow flies,
 The Constable in death doth lay.

Alone, McRa the postern holds,
 His good bow grasping firm and true:
 The surging crowd beneath him rolls,
 While through their ranks his death-shafts flew.

Again, again an Isles-man falls,
 The iron postern keeps them back
 And thundering from the castle walls
 The huge stones check the fierce attack.

Wearied and worn, but firm as ever,
 None save the old man by his side,
 And but one arrow in his quiver,
 Our brave man fronts the battle tide.

* John McKenzie 9th Baron of Kintail.

† Boats.

Thus stands McRa, one arrow left,
 Around, McDonald's clansmen rage,
 No hand to save, of hope bereft,
 But no base thoughts his soul engage.

The warrior's blood is in his veins,
 The warrior's glance is in his eye,
 The warrior's privilege remains,
 As warrior at his post to die.

But hight! he sees, with bated breath,
 McDonald's Chief comes full in view—
 The grey goose wing is edged with death,
 His single arrow, keen and true.

Ohone a rie! Ohone a rie!
 Proud Donald's laid him down to die,
 And round his wailing Clansmen see,
 No, more McKenzie's* Towers defy—

Sadly and slowly they bend their sails,
 The currachs† leave the hostile shore,
 No care the dying Chief avails,
 He ne'er will meet his lady more.

More than three hundred years have gone
 Since our brave man this deed has done,
 And from that rugged Highland bay,
 Where Ellandonan's ruins lay,
 His sons have wandered far and wide,
 In every clime on every tide—
 Again, again, that warrior's soul
 Has filled the brave man's heart and told
 Of deeds to our late listening ear
 That nobly with his own compare.
 At Sheriffmuir and Culloden,
 The Stuart's falling flag defend—
 Where palm trees bend in India's sky,
 The fierce Mahratta's force defy—
 And where the west Atlantic laves
 Our Southland with its tepid waves.

* McKenzie had become the family name of the Fitzgeralds.

† Boats.

THE CLAN MACRAE

His gallant sons have claimed with pride
That proud blood from the mountain side.
On many a battle field they lie,
Where night winds wail a symphony—
On Carolina's flowery plain,
And where Potomac seeks the main,
The "Lost Cause" of the South maintain—
Where the dark woods of many a river,
Bend low, before the breezes quiver,
They proudly lie—as warriors claim
A share in Highland Duncan's fame.

CLACHAN DUICH OLD CHURCH AND BURIAL GROUND OF THE CLAN

THE SCATTERED CHILDREN OF KINTAIL

There are many, many weary hearts,
And feet are bleeding sore,
But still our steps are further turned
From Duich's lonely shore.
On a thousand plains our clansmen roam,
In exile's bitter pain,
And eyes are dim with longing tears
To see Kintail again.

Oh! often in our dreams we see
The day fade in the west,
And watch the glory lights of eve
Flash o'er Loch Duich's breast.
In a distant land we hear once more
The heron's wistful cry,
And live again a fleeting space
In days for ever by.

But a silence dwells upon our land,
And broods in every glen,
And never shall we gather round
The ceilidh fires again.
The red deer sleeps in sheltered nooks,
Where homes were wont to be,
And those who loved and laboured there
Are exiled o'er the sea.

Though our 'restless feet have wandered far,
And severed wide we be,
The children of a common stock,
A clan till death are we.
Yet the hills we loved shall ne'er resound
Our slogan's thrilling peal,
Nor catch the tumult of our march
Come throbbing down Glen Shiel.

KENNETH A. MACRAE.

Lieut.-Colonel JOHN MACRAE-GILSTRAP of Eilean Donan, Ross-shire, and of Ballimore, Argyllshire; second son of the late Duncan MacRae, Esq., D.L., J.P., Head of the MacRaes of Conchra, Kames Castle, Isle of Bute; Deputy Hereditary Keeper of the Palace of Holyrood House; Gentleman-at-Arms; Member of Royal Company of Archers; Constable of Eilean Donan Castle. He joined the 42nd Highlanders (the Black Watch) in 1883 and served in the Eastern Soudan Campaign at Souakin, 1884. He was present at the Battle of Tamaai, served in the Nile Campaign for the relief of General Gordon at Khartoum, 1884-1885, and was appointed a "Boat Officer" with the local rank of Captain; he was present at the Battle of Kerbikan, and was mentioned in despatches. He was promoted Captain in 1890, and shortly after retired from active service. He holds the Egyptian War Medal with clasps for Tamaai, Nile 1884-1885, Kerbikan; and the Khedive's Bronze Star.

In 1914 he was Recruiting Officer for the Counties of Argyll and Bute, August 1914 to 31 Oct., when he was appointed to command 11th Service Battalion Royal Highlanders (Black Watch), which was raised on that date; he took over command 2 Dec. 1914, at Nigg, Ross-shire; served as C.O. of the Battalion at Morrish Mor (Tain), Scotton Camp (Yorks), Windygate (Fifeshire), Lochend Camp (Dunfermline), Cornton Camp (Bridge of Allan), Kelling Camp (Norfolk), Cromer, Thetford Camp (Norfolk) till 30 April 1918, when he relinquished command of the Battalion, and received Complimentary Brigade Order.

During the period the Battalion was under his command, it was inspected at Bridge of Allan by Field-Marshal Lord French, who expressed himself as very pleased with the appearance and steadiness of the Battalion.

From 4 to 24 February 1917 Colonel MacRae-Gilstrap was in France making a tour of trenches, and was attached to the Duke of Cornwall's Light Infantry on La Bassée Canal. Mentioned for valuable services, L.G., 24 Feb. 1917.

Lieut.-Colonel MacRae-Gilstrap married, in 1889, Isabella Mary, 2nd daughter of George Gilstrap, Esq., of Winthorpe, Notts, and niece of Sir William Gilstrap, Bart., of Fornham Park, Suffolk, and Northgate, Newark, Notts, upon whose death Colonel MacRae-Gilstrap assumed by Royal Licence the surname and arms of Gilstrap of Fornham Park in addition to those of his own family.

Lieut.-Colonel JOHN MACRAE-GILSTRAP

11TH ROYAL HIGHLANDERS' SOUVENIR BOWL

The Bowl is an enlarged copy of the old English Mazer or common drinking bowl used in England during the 15th and 16th centuries. The original of this Bowl was made by an Edinburgh artificer, called John Crawford, in 1591.

Round the Bowl on the outside is the inscription :—

John MacRae-Gilstrap of Eilean Donan, Lt.-Col, commanding 11th (S) Battrn. The Royal Highlanders (Black Watch) in remembrance of those who fell in the War, 1914-18.

The Badge of the Black Watch, with the number 42 in the centre, is engraved on one side, and the Royal Highlanders (Black Watch) on the other, with St. Andrew and his cross in the centre. Colonel MacRae-Gilstrap's own armorial bearings are also engraved on the Bowl, which is $13\frac{1}{4}$ inches across and stands 8 inches high on a plinth of oak. Subjoined is a copy of the letter accompanying the presentation of the 11th Royal Highlanders' Souvenir Bowl :—

Huntington, Ascot,
Berks, 15 Dec. 1919.

My dear Colonel,

I write at the request of our Officers' Reunion Committee, to ask you to accept the 11th Royal Highlanders' Souvenir Bowl. It is the wish of your old officers that this Bowl should remain in the possession of yourself, Mrs. MacRae-Gilstrap, and your heirs for all time, as a small symbol of the pride with which all ranks served under your command throughout the Battalion's entire life.

The Bowl is engraved in remembrance of those who fell. We hope that it will remind you now and again of the days which they and you and we spent together—many happy, some sad, but all alike distinguished by the deep mutual trust and by loyalty to the traditions of the Regiment—a trust and a loyalty which you originally inspired, and of which you remained to the end our bright and constant example. Not least often will you be reminded of a lonely promontory of Ross-shire, where the Battalion was born, and where in the early months of the War there assembled from every corner of the world a small body of soldiers—many of whom are numbered amongst the Scottish heroes.

The officers send to Mrs. MacRae-Gilstrap and yourself their kindest remembrances, and their heartfelt wishes for your future happiness and prosperity.

Believe me, My dear Colonel,

Yours ever,

(Signed) JOHN BIRRELL.

Mrs. MACRAE-GILSTRAP of Eilean Donan, was Vice-President of the British Red Cross Society of the Cowal Division of Argyll. She gave pecuniary aid to and took an active interest in the work of the Society, which contributed comforts for the Highland Battalions throughout the War. She also presented stretchers to the Kirn First Aid Detachment.

Mrs. MacRae-Gilstrap's gift of 100 guineas in 1916 did much to help the War Hospital at Strachur, and during the whole time of its existence she sent fruit, flowers and vegetables for the patients.

It was owing to her initiative that a Fund was raised amongst the clansmen and clanswomen at home and abroad to provide three Clan MacRae Ambulances (at a cost respectively of £450, £650, and £650), which she handed over to the Red Cross Society for service in France.

Further, Mrs. MacRae-Gilstrap has compiled these Rolls of Honour and of Service to commemorate the deeds of the men and women of the Clan who served and died in the Great War.

Mrs. MacRae-Gilstrap is a Lady of Grace of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem.

Mrs. MACRAE-GILSTRAP
of Eilean Donan, Ross-shire, and Ballimore, Argyllshire.

THE THREE CLAN AMBULANCES.

The Funds for this Ambulance were collected from Clansmen, Clanswomen and Friends at Home and Abroad by Mrs. MacRae-Gilstrap of Eilean Donan, 1914-16.

The Funds for this Ambulance were supplied by Mr. Donald MacRae of Wilmington, N.C., U.S.A., through Mrs. MacRae-Gilstrap of Eilean Donan, 1917.

The Funds for this Ambulance were collected from Clansmen, Clanswomen and Friends in U.S.A. by Mrs. MacRae-Gilstrap of Eilean Donan, 1918.

the day. He at once took charge, and carried on the advance until relieved by an officer. Later, when the right flank was enfiladed by a hostile machine-gun, he himself worked round and bombed it, causing the crew to abandon their gun. At another period, together with one other man, he charged and killed eight of the enemy who were firing on our men. His contempt for danger and organizing ability were remarkable throughout, and contributed largely to the success." He was one of four brothers serving. (Balintore.)

McRAE, KENNETH WALLACE, 748060. Pte., 5th Batt. (Quebec Regt.). Killed in action, 4 June 1917. (Haverhill, Mass.)

MacRAE, MALCOLM. Lieut., 1st Batt., formerly in 105th Saskatchewan Fusiliers. Enlisted, No. 472443, in 1915. He was educated at Dornie and Aberdeen Grammar School, and entered the service of the Canadian Bank of Commerce in 1912. Soon after joining he received a commission, later promoted Capt.; being an excellent shot, he was employed for a time on the Staff in the Dominion as a Musketry Officer; later he crossed to France and was twice wounded whilst serving there; he was wounded a third time, and his wounds proved fatal; he died near Cambrai, 29 Sept. 1918, aged 27. M.C., L.G., 1 Feb. 1919, "At Monchy-le-Preux, on Aug. 26 1918, he led his platoon through intense machine-gun fire across the open, intercepting a strong party of the enemy, whom he forced to surrender after inflicting heavy casualties on them. But for his initiative this party would have escaped by a communication trench." (Dornie, Kintail.)

MacRAE, DONALD, 153067. Pte., 43rd Batt. Severely wounded; died in hospital at Boulogne of wounds received in action, 2 July 1916. Prior to enlisting he was employed as managing clerk for the Dominion Land Survey Company at Port Nelson. He was one of a little band of seven who travelled over 1,000 miles to Winnipeg to enlist, and walked 250 miles of it through swamp. They covered the 250 miles in 10 days, and were frequently up to their waists in water. They had many rivers to cross and had to hire Indians to ferry them in their canoes. Often their clothes were frozen on them, and they had to stop to light a fire to thaw themselves. The officer who enrolled them at Winnipeg wanted to get the bunch, as he said, "Any man who can come over the Nelson trail can come through anything." (Stornoway.)

MacRAE, DONALD, 199000. Sergt., 17th Batt. Died of wounds, Armentières, 16 Aug. 1918. He emigrated to Canada about 1906, and was for about 7 years in the police force, Fort William, Ontario. He had served with the Seaforths in old days, and in Aug. 1914, he gave a ready response to his country's call. He enlisted in the Cameron Highlanders of Canada, and served with that Regt. for 18 months in France, and, for his soldierly qualities, was promoted Sergt. His C.O. wrote:—"The last I saw of your son he was leading his platoon towards their objective, true to the tradition of the Highland soldier. . . . It is hard to lose such a brave and gallant comrade." He was one of four brothers serving, three of whom fell. (Coll. Back, Stornoway.)

MacRAE, JOHN, 71338. A/C.S.M., 27th Batt., 2nd Canadians. Wounded, St. Eloi, Apr. 1916; killed in action, 15 Sept. 1916, at Courcellette, France. M.M., 10 Aug. 1916, "For conspicuous bravery in the field. Though wounded he continued to command his Company with conspicuous coolness and success, and attained his objective. On several occasions he acted as guide in reconnaissances towards the craters, and stayed with his command until incapacitated by further wounds." Bar to M.M., L.G., 23 Sept. 1916. Sergt. MacRae belonged to Aigas, and his Mil. Medal was the first which came to the Parish of Kilmorack. Before going to Canada he served in the London Police. It is understood that his C.O., in recognition of his bravery, had

- MacRAE, JOHN DUNCAN GEORGE, younger of Eilean Donan and Ballimore.
Capt., Seaforth Highrs., attd. R.F.C.; commd., Seaforth Highrs., Feb. 1915; seconded for service with R.F.C.; went with the 63rd Squadron in 1917 to Mesopotamia, where he was made a prisoner of war, being forced to land in enemy territory owing to engine trouble; prisoner in the hands of the Turks at Kedos, 5 Oct. 1917—Nov.
1918. "On 5 Oct. Lieuts. MacRae and Blake, reconnoitring up the Adhaim River, 70 miles N.E. from Samarra, failed to return. Search was immediately made the missing machine was located that afternoon by Lieuts. Adams and West, who went down low to investigate; there were Arabs below, and both machines were hit by rifle fire. Apart from this the ground was too broken to land without crashing.
Adams thought he saw the white skins of two officers without shirts, and that one of them waved to him. It has since transpired that what Adams saw were, sure enough, the two captured officers. The Arabs had taken most of their clothing and made them drag their machine some distance over the desert, cutting their backs open with "coubashes." MacRae laughed at one of the most aggressive, and tried to make the others do the same, but the ruffian felled him to the ground with the butt of his rifle. To watch our machines fade away must have been a bitter moment." Immediate action was taken by Intelligence Branch, G.H.Q., and political officers, to get these two officers back, but they were handed over to the Turks on 6 Oct. "On the long journey to Asia Minor the only consideration they received at all was from the German officers they encountered."
- MACRAE, JOHN FINLAY NOEL, Lieut., R.F.C. (Black Watch). At outbreak of War enlisted in Cameron Highrs.(T.). Battles of Festubert and Loos. Twice wounded and gassed. Commd., 11th (S.) Batt. Roy. Highrs. (Black Watch), attd.

- R.F.C. Two mentions. M.C., L.G., 13 May 1918. "While on an offensive patrol he attacked an enemy machine and drove it down damaged. On the same day he took part in a bombing raid at a low altitude on an enemy aerodrome and secured a direct hit on one of the hangars. While returning he engaged enemy troops and transport on a road, causing casualties and confusion. He then climbed and attacked an enemy kite balloon and in spite of intense fire, succeeded in forcing it down damaged. He showed splendid courage and initiative." (London.)

M.C., 1917; Bar to M.C., 1918: "he kept the last remaining section of his battery in action under intense fire during an enemy advance until the enemy were within 1,000 yards of his position. Though he had been ordered to disable his guns and withdraw, he succeeded in limbering up the Section and withdrawing both his guns in full view of the enemy, and under intense machine-gun fire, with very few casualties. The success of this enterprise was largely due to his courage and coolness." (Berwick.)

*From The Pipes of War, by Brevet-Col. Sir BRUCE SETON, Bart. of Abercorn, C.B., and Pipe-Major JOHN GRANT, with contributions by NEIL MUNRO, BOYD CABLE, PHILIP
GIBBS and others.*

“Wherever Scottish troops have fought the sound of the pipes has been heard, speaking to us of our beloved native land, bringing back to our memories the proud traditions of our race, and stimulating our spirits to fresh efforts in the cause of freedom. The cry of ‘The Lament’ over our fallen heroes has reminded us of the undying spirit of the Scottish race, and of the sacredness of our cause.

“The Pipers of Scotland may well be proud of the part they have played in this war. In the heat of battle, by the lonely grave, and during the long hours of waiting they have called us to show ourselves worthy of the land to which we belong. Many have fallen in the fight for liberty, but their memories remain. Their fame will inspire others to learn the pipes, and keep alive their music in the Land of the Gael.”

· IN · FLANDERS · FIELDS ·

In Flanders fields the poppies blow
Between the crosses, row on row,
That mark our place; and in the sky
The larks still bravely singing, fly,
Scarce heard amidst the guns below.

We are the Dead, short days ago
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunsets glow,
Loved and were loved, and now we lie
In Flanders Fields.

Take up the quarrel with the foe;
To you from falling hands we throw
The torch; be yours to hold it high.
If ye break faith with us who die,
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow
In Flanders Fields.

LIEUT.-COLONEL JOHN McCRAE
Canadian Army Medical Corps.

The Fiery Cross

Charred and dipped in blood, old
Scotland's fiery
cross was borne
from hand to hand
by swiftest runners to summon all the clansmen to their rallying places in the wars for freedom waged by Scotland's sons from time immemorial. Through the lapse of many years the spirit of the fiery cross was caught by John McCrae, and to all the sons of freedom he flung the flaming torch, summoning them to rally on the fields of Flanders. How fleet and well he bore his cross is attested by the mighty armies appearing as if by magic to proclaim that they would keep the faith and battle to the end. John McCrae exchanged

his cross of fire for one bedecked with poppies. Beneath
it may he rest
in peace eternal.

MacRAE, MAXWELL. Capt., 25th Batt. Can. Infantry; wounded, 1918. M.C. and two Bars to M.C. L.G., 16 Sept. 1918, "For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty and fine leadership during many raids on enemy outposts. On one occasion, when in charge of the main party, he went to the assistance of scouts who had come in contact with the enemy patrol and were being hard pressed, personally killing several of the enemy and returning with prisoners. Later he carried out a most difficult raid, owing to the distance of the objective and to the moonlight, capturing several prisoners and bringing back the most valuable information. . . . 1st Bar:—"Whilst in charge of a raiding party, he captured an enemy post, 1,000 yards distant. He and two scouts went forward and located the post and guided the party. They then attacked, captured two prisoners and disposed of the remaining 20 of the garrison, returning without a casualty. . . . 2nd Bar:—"For cool courage and judgment during an attack on the enemy outpost line south-east of Inchy-en-Artois on the nights of 22nd and 23rd Sept. 1918. He organized the attack on the enemy posts and was responsible for clearing 800 yards of the enemy outpost line. He personally led the attack on the extreme right post, killing three of the enemy and capturing two machine-guns. He did fine work." He held the record in the Canadian Corps for Trench Raids, and was known as the "Hun Snatcher" by his Battalion. (Westville, N.S.)

THE CLAN WAR MEMORIALS

Reproduction of the illustration on the appeal for the Memorial.

THE CLAN MACRAE SOCIETY,

in memory of their gallant Clansmen who laid down their lives in the Great War, has endeavoured to perpetuate their memory by establishing in Kintail a District Nurse, whose services are available whenever accident or illness occurs. It is further proposed to commemorate the sacrifice of these gallant men by engraving their names on a bronze tablet, let into the rock upon which stands Eilean Donan Castle in the home land of the Clan MacRae.

1914-1919.

“Great granite stone, speak what our love enrols—
The glorious passing of heroic souls.
We do not number them among the dead ;
They rest in many fields where valour bled ;
Serving the right, they fell ; yet, still in life,
They serve the God of right beyond the strife.”
